

Company disclosure update

The Companies (Registrar, Languages and Trading Disclosures) Regulations, Statutory Instrument number 3429 states that all companies and limited liability partnerships must state the same information on websites, emails and faxes as are required on company letterheads as follows:-

- The Company's full name (as registered at Companies House)
- The Company number
- The place of registration (ie the words "registered in England") (or Scotland etc, as appropriate)
- The Company's registered office address

All companies should ensure that they are complying with this regulation and if not should make the appropriate changes.